Mission and Vision

Mission

- A worldwide nonprofit organization that uses innovative techniques and ideas based on neuroscience and body awareness to uplift and empower people all over the world.
- Trains people in a community across all age groups in skill-based activities that are easily available, reasonably priced, flexible, and easily transported, which promotes both individual and systemic transformation.
- Recognizing the deep understanding present in the beautifully diverse human family, TRI develops professionals as well as natural leaders.

Vision

- To see a society in which people and groups fully accept their common humanity and are given the resources they need to develop their underlying resilience.

Assessment of Company's Current Digital Marketing Practice

Trauma
Resource
Institute

- No Current Campaigns: TRI is not running any Google Ads campaigns presently.
- Google Ads Grant Application:
 - Applied for $10,000/month in ad credits under the Google Ads Grant program.
 - Application is currently pending approval.
- Potential Impact of Grant:
 - Boost visibility for TRI's services and programs.
 - Drive traffic to the website and increase engagement.
 - Promote the TRM and CRM training programs.
 - Encourage downloads and usage of the iChill app.
- Next Steps:
 - Await grant approval to implement campaigns targeting program enrollment, brand awareness, and user engagement.

Mobile Application

- Established a mobile app, iChill
- Focuses on the six skills: Tracking, Resourcing, Grounding, Gesturing, Help Now! to Reset Now!, Shift and Stay
- No exact promotions for TRM and to visit the website

iChill was narrated by Elaine Miller-Karas, LCSW, the co-founder of the Trauma Resource Institute. To learn more about the Trauma and Community Resiliency Models, you can read Elaine Miller-Karas' book, Building Resilience to Trauma: The Trauma and Community Resiliency Models (Second Edition published in 2023), published by Routledge. Trauma Institute & Child Trauma Institute

- Actively uses Google Ads to promote services such as Childhood Trauma Therapy and Intensive Grief Therapy.
- Ads are designed with specific calls to action, such as visiting the website for more information or contacting therapists, creating a direct pathway for potential clients.
- Their focus is on targeted keywords like “child trauma therapy” and “grief therapy,” which are highly relevant to TRI's potential audience.

The Trauma Foundation

- Uses Google Ads to promote Unresolved Trauma Resources and Foundation for Trauma Recovery.
- Their ads emphasize support for individuals, families, and communities, with a strong focus on healing unresolved trauma.
- Keywords like “trauma recovery foundation” and “trauma resources” are central to their campaigns, presenting direct competition for TRI in search rankings.

2. Behavior & Pain Points

- Prefer flexible, science-backed tools.
- Limited access, high costs, time constraints.

3. Customer Journey

- Awareness: Discover TRI via Google Ads, iChill, social media.
- Consideration: Explore website, testimonials, app.
- Decision: Enroll in programs, recommend TRI.

4. Insights

- Affordable tools attract diverse audiences.
- Google Ads can expand TRI's reach and impact.

SWOT Analysis for Google Ads

Strengths

- $10K/month Google Ads Grant for campaigns.
- Precise targeting for niche audiences.
- Increased visibility for programs and app.
- Unique focus on resilience training.

Weaknesses

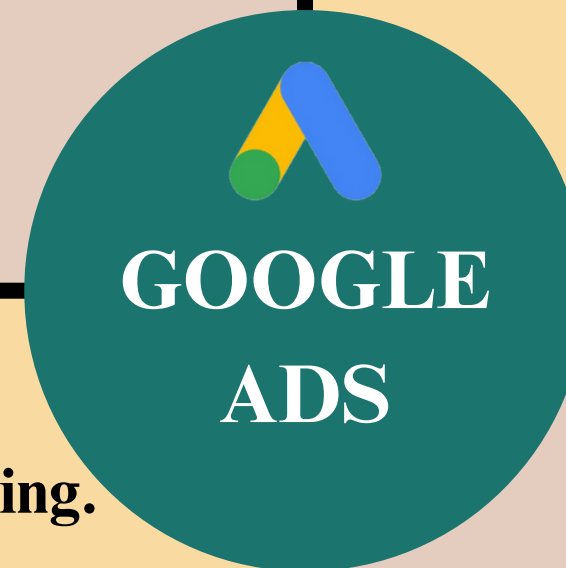

- Delayed Google Ads account setup.
- Low brand recognition compared to competitors.

Opportunities

- Explore unique keywords like "resiliency training."
- Expand global outreach with Google Ads.
- Promote iChill app to boost downloads and engagement.
- Use diverse ad formats for better reach and impact.

Threats

- Competitive saturation with active rivals.
- High CPC for trauma-related keywords.
- Dependence on Google algorithm changes.
- Competitors may intensify campaigns in response.

SWOT Analysis Mobile Application

Trauma
Resource
Institute

Strengths

- Developed a mobile application
- Free to download
- App teaches users a few skills that they will learn when signing up for CRM or TRM

Opportunities

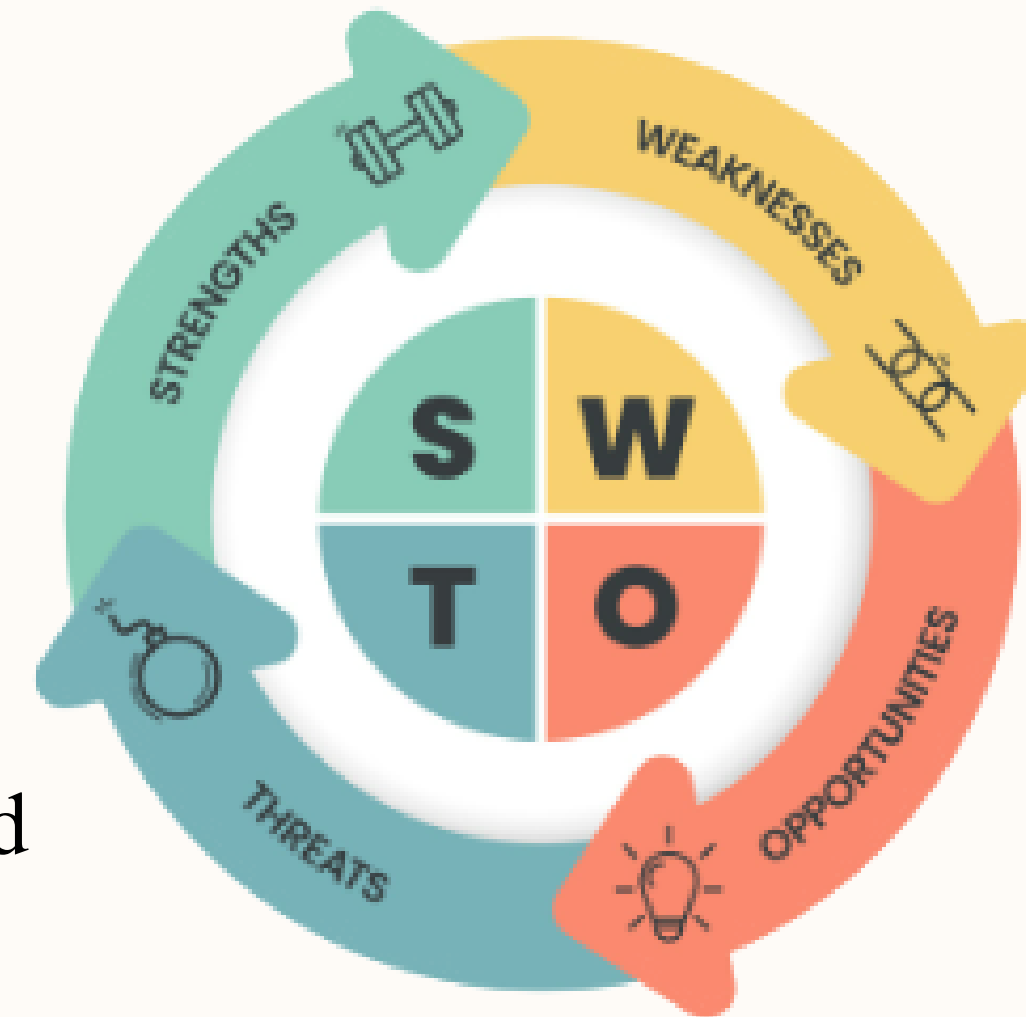

- Help build brand awareness
- Update the app from its current state
- Can serve as a first point of contact for users

Weaknesses

- Fail to promote the TRM & CRM programs
- Cost and time constraints
- Small conversion rate

Threats

- Not unique, can be easily copied
- Two competitors already have an app
- Risk of people uninstalling the app

Clinical Practitioner? Check out TRM

TRM

TRM focuses on the biological basis of trauma and the automatic survival responses that the human body uses when faced with perceived threat.

*As a bonus you'll be able to earn hours towards licensing

Community Leader? Check out CRM

CRM

CRM's goal is to help to create "trauma-informed" and "resiliency-focused" communities that share a common understanding of the impact of trauma and chronic stress on the nervous system and how resiliency can be restored or increased using this skills-based approach.

Conclusion

1. TRI can enhance digital marketing efforts by leveraging the $10,000 monthly Google Ads Grant to increase the visibility of TRM and CRM programs.
2. Google Ads campaigns with targeted keywords and compelling text ads can effectively reach diverse audiences, such as mental health professionals and community leaders.
3. The iChill app currently underutilizes its potential and should be redesigned to better promote TRM and CRM programs.
4. Simplifying app navigation and gathering user feedback through surveys can strengthen engagement and reduce uninstallation rates.
5. By combining Google Ads and iChill app improvements, TRI can enhance digital presence, build brand awareness, and foster growth in digital engagement and program participation.
6. These efforts align with TRI's mission of creating resilient, trauma-informed communities worldwide.
